THE COLD GLARE FROM THE SCREEN HURTS MY EYES. I WANT TO TURN AWAY.

I DENY MYSELF THIS WEAKNESS.

THE VOICE ASKS ME WHO I AM,

SOMETIMES I ASK MYSELF THIS QUESTION.

FOR MY MISSION HERE, I CLAIM TO BE A FREE-LANCE WEAPONS MERCHANT. INTERESTED IN OBTAINING MORE OF THESE GUNS.

I AM ASKED WHERE I OBTAINED THIS ONE.

I COULD NOT TELL THE VOICE I PROCURED IT FROM A YOUTH WHO WANTED NOTHING MORE IN LIFE THAN TO END MINE...

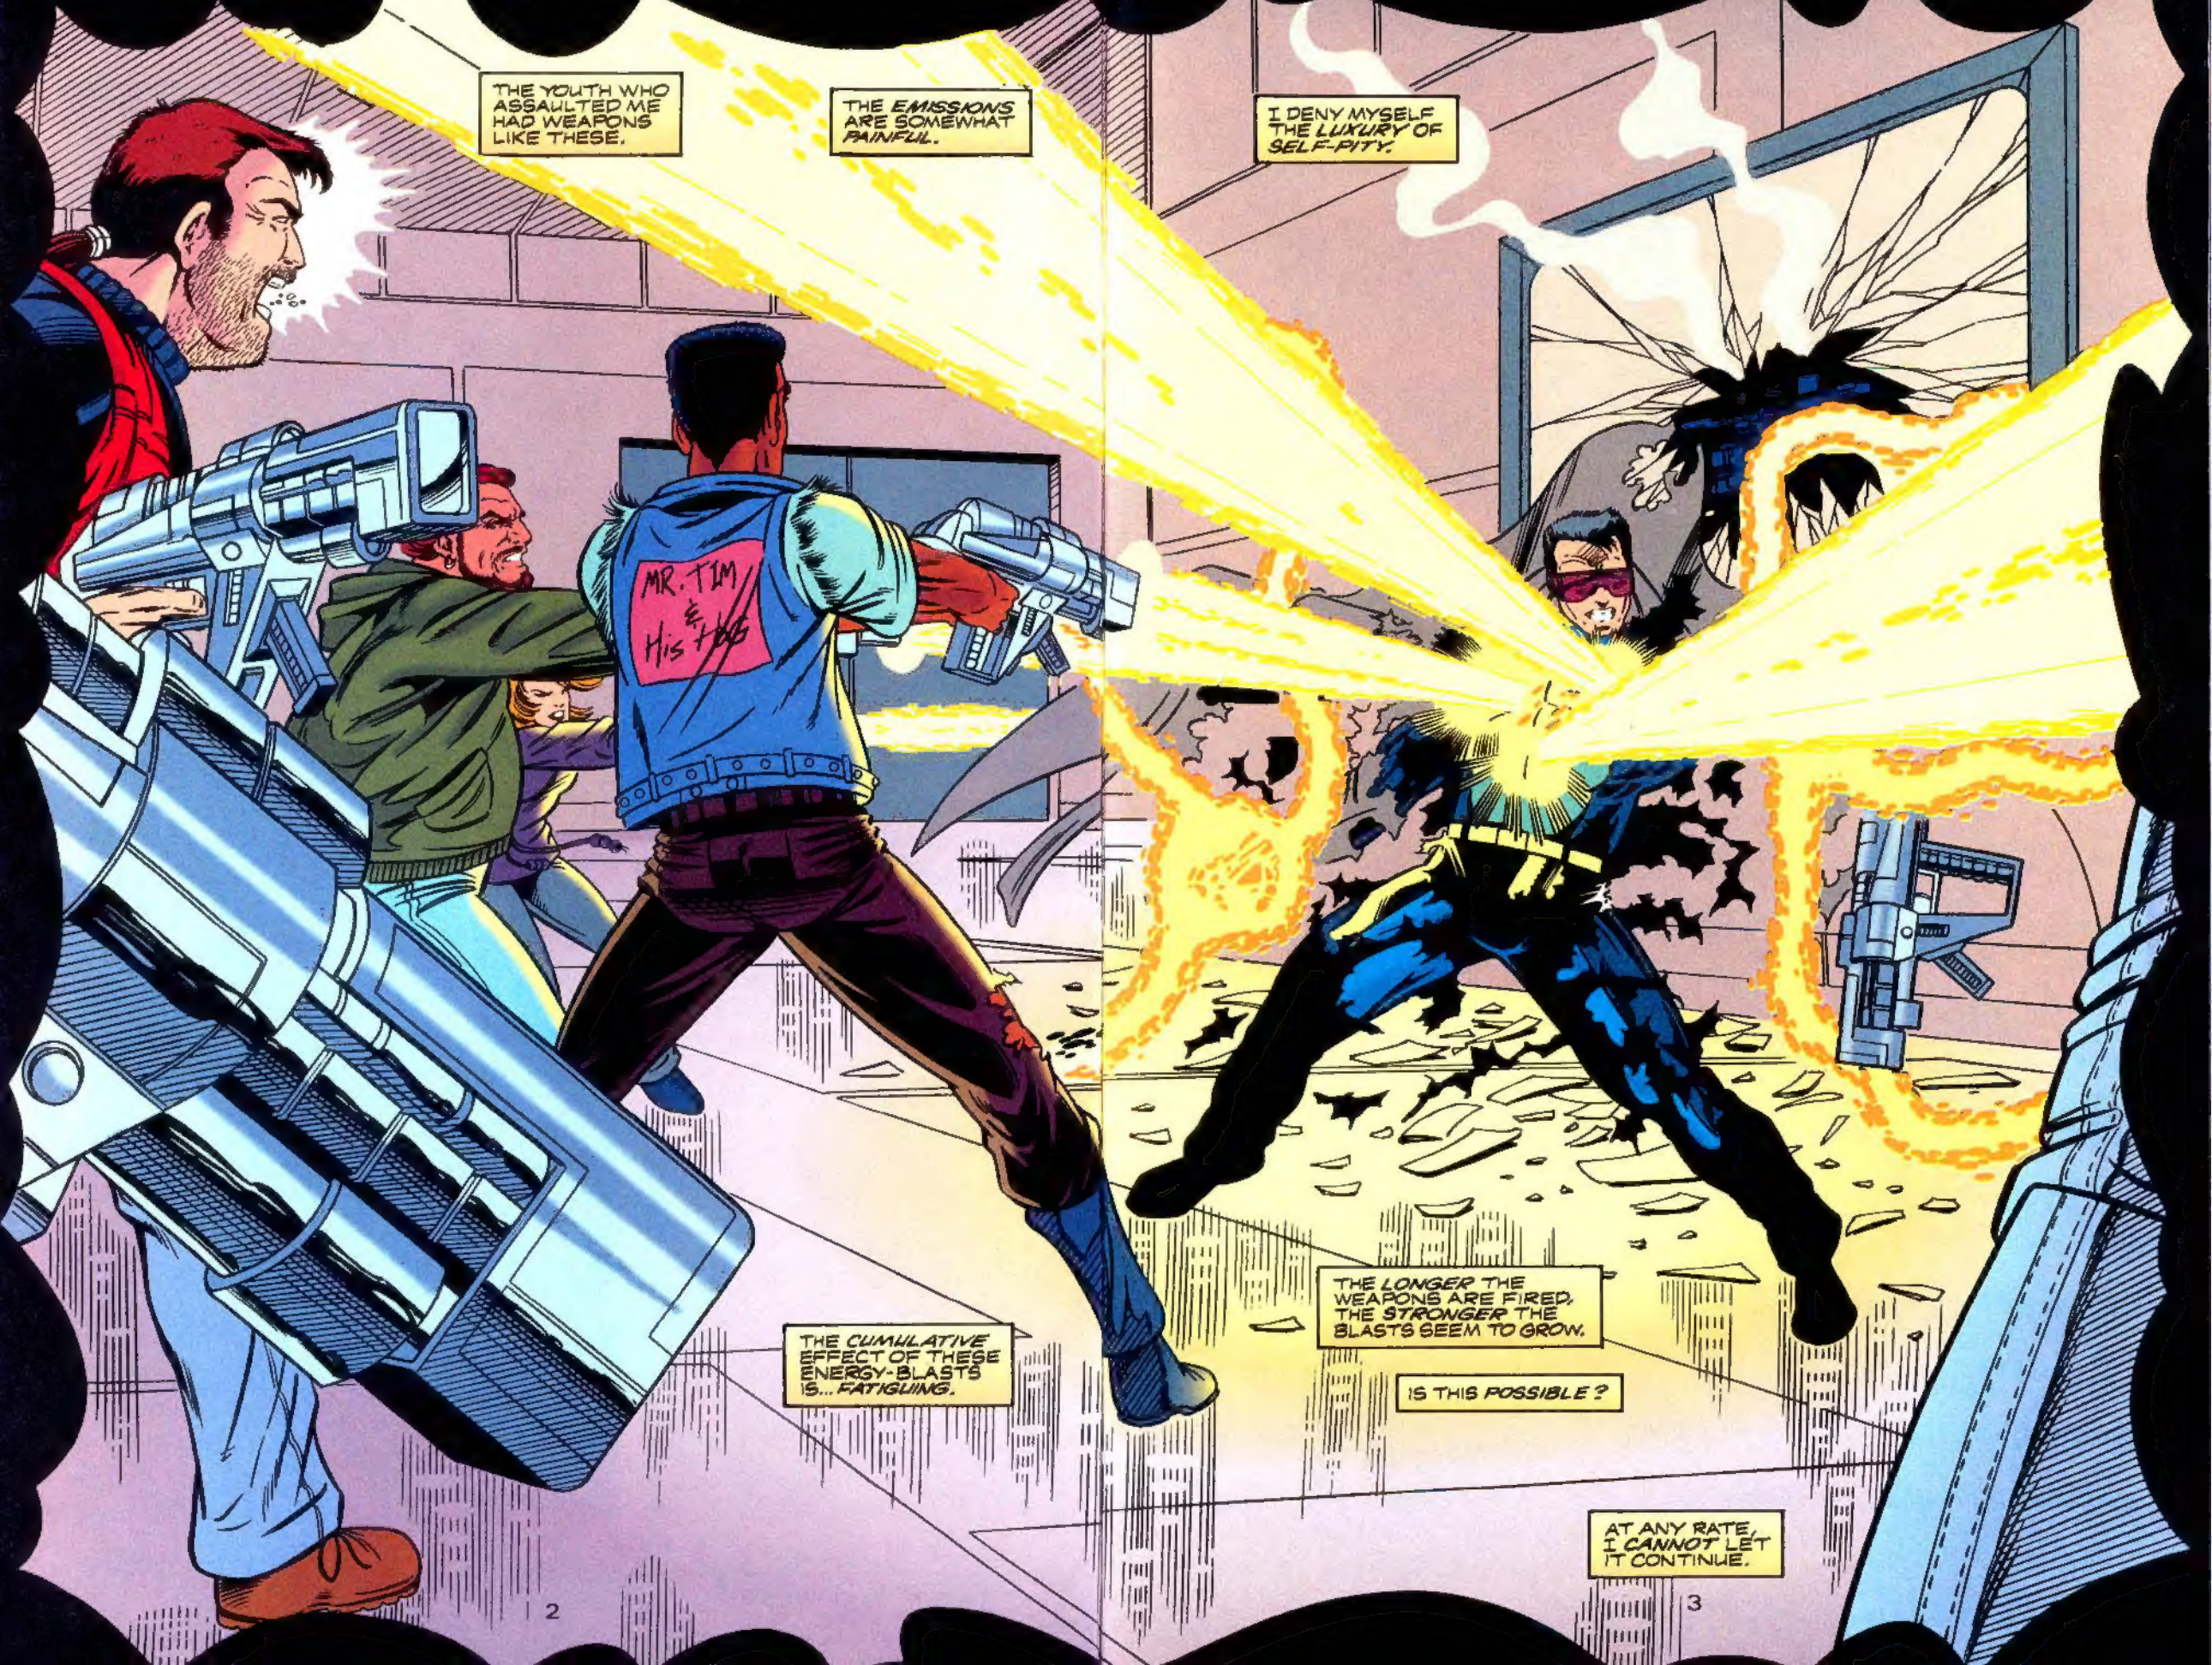

...AND CONVINCING FALSEHOODS DO NOT COME EASILY TO ME.

MEN WITH GUNS. ALWAYS LOTS OF MEN WITH GUNS.

I'M TIRED OF IT.

THE YOUTH WHO ASSAULTED ME HAD WEAPONS LIKE THESE.

Let's start off with the proverbial last word on issue #6 and then on to some of your letters about issues #7 and #8:

Dear Outsiders,

I loved issue #6 and here is what I loved about it. A snot-spitting demon that runs amok all over the airplane; Halo's reaction to "demon loogies" and "this nerd can't shoot snotwads forever." The loogie-flicking demon that appeared this issue reminded me of The Twilight Zone Movie segment in which John Lithgow played a very nervous passenger who saw a demon, or was it a gremlin, that was tearing apart the airplane engine. I also laughed when the demon got squashed by the tail of the airplane after gloating about not being easily killed by the fall. All in all, a great issue.

I would like to take the time to see if I qualify as an Outsider. I work well with people but I'm truly happy when I do the following: archery, swimming, writing, motorcycle riding, and comic-book collecting. I do what I want to do when I want to do it. Again, I also handle people a lot better in crowded situations than I used to. Does this qualify me to be an Outsider?

Finally, I would like to see the Eradicator become a permanent member of the Outsiders. Besides, I think they might need him real soon since someone in the ranks is due to be killed in issue #7. I don't want to know who it is, so surprise me.

See you in 30.

Chris Mack
Sidney, NY

You're definitely an Outsider, Chris, as long as that "comic-book collecting" doesn't mean hoarding issues to drive up market value, but collecting for reading/trading/sharing's sake. By now you know not only who "died" but that the "Rad man is a permanent fixture (as permanent as things get in comics—like being dead).

That John Lithgow TZ Movie segment was a remake of one of William Shatner's TZTV episodes—"Nightmare at 30,000 Feet."

Dear NEW Outsiders,

As a devoted fan of the original OUTSIDERS series, I'm delighted to see a new one back on the racks! It's officially reclaimed its post as one of the most fun, innovative spins on the super-team in comics. They're even more outside the mainstream group of heroes than ever. Already the action in the book has launched this series at breakneck speed, with a lot of excitement to comment on in only seven issues, and there're no signs of the action letting up!

First of all, thanks for the appearances of the Eradicator and the Atomic Knight. Many thanks for bringing back some villains from the late, lamented SUICIDE SQUAD last issue. Between this title and THE SPECTRE, it's great to see those characters being put to good use!

Judging from that dramatic scene with Greg Brooks, it appears that Looker is undead—not completely dead—so I'm eager to see her haunting Abyssus. As for Halo, I think it's a very clever plot twist that the Violet Harper personality has reemerged from her mind. It comes as a surprise, but in retrospect, we shouldn't expect Halo to come out of her recent coma unscathed. I do hope Gaby isn't completely dead, though, unless the Aurale in her finds an equally intriguing body to inhabit.

Faust is the most interesting new Outsider, in my opinion, so I'm looking forward to learning the complete story behind him. At first I objected to Wylde's being on the same team because there are already enough werebeasts in comics (Tasmanian Devil in JUSTICE LEAGUE EUROPE, Timber Wolf in LEGION OF SUPER-HEROES, to name only two). What I do like about Charlie is the apparent struggle between the man and the beast in him. Excellent writing on the part of Mr. Barr. I've also enjoyed Technocrat and his two-fisted conflicts with Sanction and Marissa. You know I wouldn't buy the book if it didn't have Geo-Force and Katana in it! They're the heart of the team, after all. (Can we have an update on Black Lightning, please?)

Paul Pelletier and Robert Campanella are doing a wonderful job of carrying on the traditional look of the Outsiders while adding their own smooth, fluid style. With Stuart Chaifetz's colors, the book is always bright, eye-opening and fantastic!

I'd like to put in a request for the return of Heatstroke and Cold Snap from the original series. Those two have the most interesting relationship between two villains in comics, and I think they could be a big hit in this new series as well. Perhaps they could even join the team?

Looking forward to the clash with Azrael next issue!

Neil Ahlquist

Your wish is our command, young disaster master. POOF! OUTSIDERS #9 brought back the erstwhile M.O.D.s, but they really don't fit in the new group.

You got it a bit backwards with regard to Charlie Wylde, Neil. He's not a werebeast: it is more a struggle of a man trying to retain his last bits of humanity as they are slowly eroded by the natural ursine characteristics of the beast his mind inhabits.

We hope not having Katana and Geo-Force in every single issue won't dismay you, but rather that the conflict between the two groups herein will still entice you back every issue wondering who we'll spotlight next, such as Katana in a solo story in #14 and the return of the aforementioned Aurale in #13.

For those of you who haven't read Mr. Isabella's provoking and progressive column every week in the Comics Buyer's Guide, the Black Lightning series is due in February 1995. I've seen the art by Eddy Newell and Ron McCain and it looks great! Will B.L. and Outsiders meet? What do you say, readers?

There is the possibility of the Suicide Squad coming back with their new leader, Dr. Jack Kevorkian. This lettercolumn is certainly taking on a maudlin air, isn't it? Let's see if the next letter can't cheer things up with a comment on the "return of Halo."

Dear Mr. Barr and friends,

Before anything happens, bring back the old Halo quick. Otherwise, great book.

Mark Torres
145-07 230 Place

Mark, before anything happens, be clearer. Otherwise, great letter. You mean the Halo with the black outfit and the long hair? Or the white outfit with the short hair? She is older now. So do we bring her back as she is now? Or do you mean bring back Violet Harper? She'll be a bit...crusty, being buried and all, but we'll see what we can do. Actually, Halo is an alien entity and always was, and she's still in the book. So what exactly do you mean by "bring back the old Halo," Mark? And...uh... "before anything happens" wasn't a threat, was it, Mark? Good. Shall we hear from another letterwriter on the same subject? Good.

Outsiders,

Halo is dead.

Last month I wrote you a very sad letter. I had just been crushed by what seemed to be an arbitrary decision to wipe out another perfectly good character. Certainly there's something to be said for wrapping up dangling plot threads, but why bring Halo back and get us to love her again just to wipe her out?

Of course, now I'm glad I didn't send the letter. Now I understand the greater vision. Halo is not Violet Harper (the body) but Gabrielle (the spirit—the glowing globe we saw in some now ancient issue).

I should have realized that, just as Halo's alien form had originally inhabited a nearly dead body the first time around, so she could again inhabit a nearly dead body. I should have picked up the clue on page 9 where Barron kisses his wife goodbye, and then at the bottom of the page there's no dead body to accompany the buckets of blood. As it was, I was surprised at the end of the issue to see a glow — a glow that turned out to be Gabrielle in a new body. Which brings us to some interesting questions.

Faust was attracted to, and attractive to, the Violet Harper persona. Did Gaby share in that attraction or is that over now? And if she is indeed attracted to Faust, then how will he respond to the new body?

Even a larger issue—this is the body of Barron's now-dead wife. How will he react to the different life that now inhabits it? Will he try to develop an amorous relationship with Halo? Will he leave the group because he is too distraught?

I'm interested to see what the new Halo will be like. Correct me if I'm wrong, but wasn't a side effect of the original union a blank memory? How complete will Halo's memory be? Since this is the second time she's gone through the experience, it's likely that a good deal of her memory will be preserved (practice makes perfect, after all). On the other hand, if her memory is not blank, it seems likely that there will be "corrupt files"—bits of Marissa's memories that Halo will remember.

All we know so far is that she knows she is part Gabrielle and part Marissa. I can't wait until next month when I can see how everyone reacts to the dramatic shock, not mention to see the jailbreak and the funeral.

Remember the Klingon words, "It's only an empty shell now. Dispose of it as such."

Halo is dead. Long live Halo.

As to the Faust/Halo coupling, Gaby definitely felt something for Faust as well—remember, this was when the Violet Harper self had not fully manifested itself, so there were some stirrings within Ms. Doe. Whether Faust, a loner most of his life whom no one gave any affection to, will reciprocate, keep reading. Any views on the subject of nice girl Halo getting involved with bad boy Faust?

Geoffrey Barron is in an odd position. He was at odds with his wife; they were probably heading for a divorce. Now her body, which he was always attracted to, has the personality of a nicer person. I compare it to how I'd look at Shannen Doherty if she were suddenly a liberal Democrat.

You are right in that Gabrielle now remembers more of both her life and Marissa Barron's, whereas with Violet Harper she hardly remembered at all.

Dear Kevin,

I mean no disrespect to the Super-Team, but maybe this book's title should be changed to ACTION COMICS STARRING THE OUTSIDERS. Unfortunately, my collection carries only a few from the Outsiders catalog. So, perhaps unfairly, I've never associated these characters with great action. Their newest incarnation has changed things, though, especially since the release of issues #6 and #8. And pleasantly, these battles aren't just fights by well-choreographed physical dramas. For an actionmonger like me, that would be enough (sometimes). But the creative team provides even more: good writing and fantastic art. And I'm sure that the future will provide even more of the same.

Thanks for your time.

Sincerely,
William V. Duncan

Dunno if even the Outsiders would want to be called ACTION COMICS considering what will be going on for the Man of Steel in said title. Nevertheless, do look forward to an appearance of said Kryptonian in these pages with issue #13.

Well, that about wraps it up for this time. Within these text pages next time you peruse same, we will be announcing the winner(s) of the two contests we held.

NEXT ISSUE: For all of you who, like Neil Ahlquist, think Geo-Force and Katana are the heart of the team, as you can see, they are back. They are still the Outsiders. However...what happens when there are two groups of Outsiders: one sort of good and one sort of bad and the one is constantly after the other? Well, you'll find out as Techno, Geo, and Kat have to clean up after their old comrades and find more than they bargained for.
